

[frontdesk]

A Library-Themed Wedding Invite

Southern California public librarian Scott Douglas La Counte, aka "Scott Douglas," author of the upcoming humor memoir Quiet, Please (Da Capo) and the "Dispatches from a Public Librarian" column for McSweeney's, is getting married this month. His bride-to-be is a library assistant, and they've created some charming library-themed wedding invites. See LibraryJournal.com for an Xpress Review of the book.

heard

"I would like to see Kansas City dedicate an 'Appreciation of Librarians Day' that would be celebrated every year. Librarians have broadened minds, kept people informed, and of course provided reading that entertains.... We owe them that tribute."

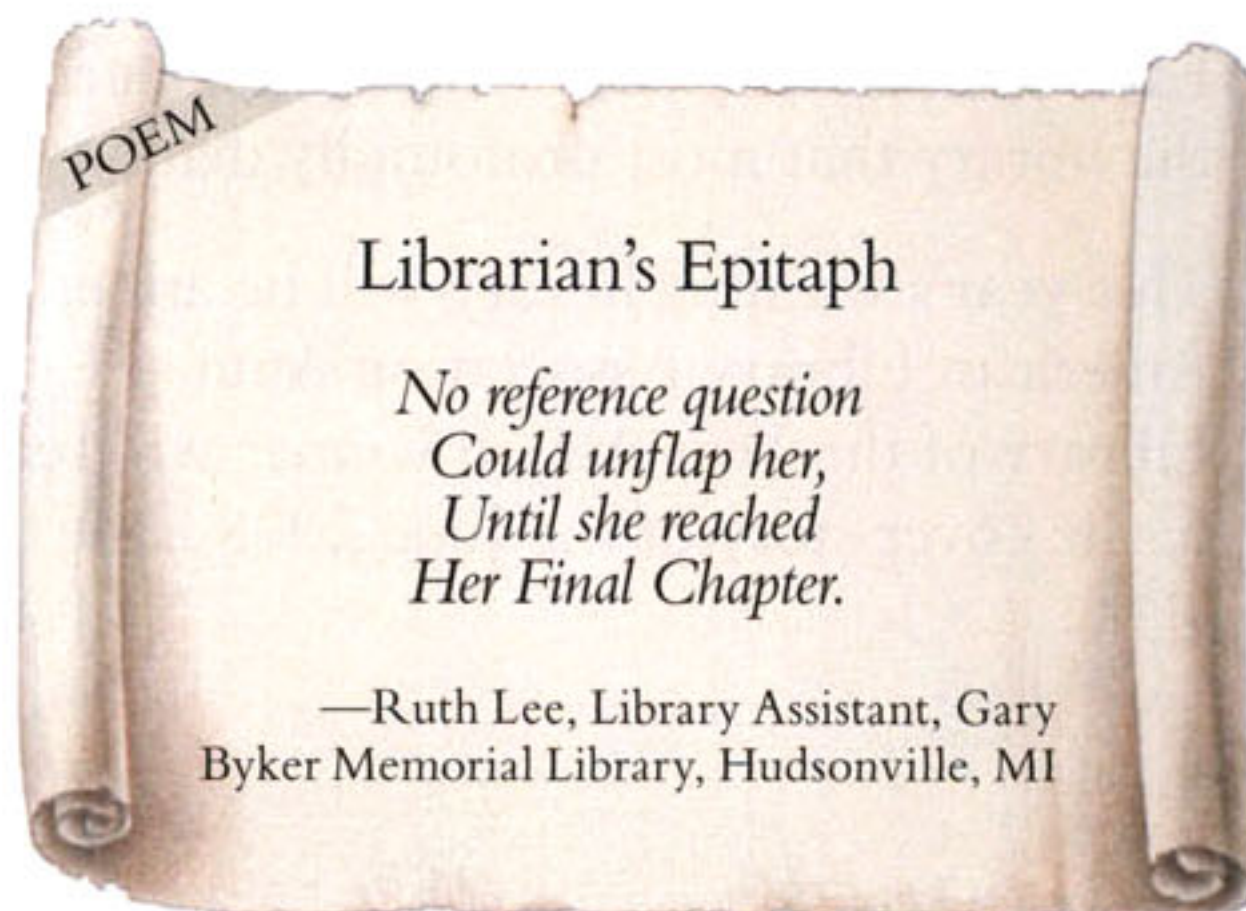

—DORY DEANGELO, KANSAS CITY, MO, RESIDENT, 2/10/08; KCLIBLOVER.NOTLONG.COM

“NO KIDDING My library system lets me renew [materials] for nearly six months. I believe that every smart, frugal person should make active use of the public library. **”

—J.D. Roth from the Get Rich Slowly blog, on MSN Money's Smart Spending blog, February 18, 2006

Seek and Ye Shall...

"Only librarians like to search. Everyone else likes to find," LJ contributor Roy Tennant has observed trenchantly more than once. The Cuyahoga County Public Library, Parma, OH, has taken the logical next step.

SCROLL ILLUSTRATION BY DORLING KINDERSLEY C/O GETTY IMAGES